Newspapers

The Commoner. "Chinese Immigration." Vol. 1, no. 6, Lincoln, Neb., March 1, 1901.
Chronicling America: Historic American Newspapers, Library of Congress.
<https://chroniclingamerica.loc.gov/lccn/46032385/1901-03-01/ed-1/seq-2/>.

This text highlights the perspectives towards Chinese immigrants during the early 1900s by questioning the reasonability of allowing Chinese immigration. I will use this source for a quote regarding the anti-chinese sentiment. It helped me understand the political and social state at the time, providing context for the resulting hostility.

The Labor World. "Duluth and Superior." Vol. 11, no. 10, Duluth, Minn., July 8, 1905.
Chronicling America: Historic American Newspapers, Library of Congress.
<https://chroniclingamerica.loc.gov/lccn/sn78000395/1905-07-08/ed-1/seq-1/>.

This newspaper examines the debates regarding modifying the Chinese Exclusion Act to either loosen or tighten its grip. I will use a quote from this source to help illustrate the opposition against Chinese immigration. It helped me better understand the motivations driving the act and American society's opinions.

Images

"At the time of the Chinese Troubles." 1866. University of Washington Libraries, Special Collections, Watson C. Squire Photograph Collection, <https://historicwhidbey.org/anti-chinese-riots>.

This photograph captured a group of men for the Chinese. I will use it to depict Americans who were not totally against them and supported their cause.

"California Gold Rush", 1852. Photograph, photographer unknown, Collection of the California State Library, <https://www.britannica.com/topic/Chinese-Exclusion-Act#/media/1/112517/242320>

This photograph captures miners working during the California Gold Rush. I will use it to show one of the reasons why the Chinese came flocking to the United States.

“Fight the virus, NOT the People.” 2020. Photograph, San Francisco Chronicle, <https://www.sfchronicle.com/sf/article/Smithsonian-to-display-banner-from-S-F-Chinatow-n-17135007.php>.

This image shows a San Francisco protest against Asian hate during the Covid pandemic. I will use it to show the lasting effects of racism rooted from the exclusion act.

Graetz, F. "The anti-Chinese wall--The American wall goes up as the Chinese original goes down." United States, 1882. <https://www.loc.gov/item/96500349/>.

I will use this cartoon to show the metaphorical wall being built to separate American society from Chinese immigrants highlighting the divide created and wanted by Americans. It made a satirical reference to the Great Wall of China, drawing parallels between the two walls.

"Granville O. Haller in 1886." Photograph. Museum of History & Industry, Seattle.
<https://historicwhidbey.org/anti-chinese-riots>.

This photograph depicted Granville O. Haller, a white figure who stayed loyal to his Chinese acquaintances. I will use it to help visualize his appearance.

Keller, George Frederick. "A Statue for Our Harbor." Wasp, 11 Nov. 1881, colored lithograph, thomasnastcartoons.com/2014/02/14/a-statue-for-our-harbor-11-november-1881/.

This photograph depicts the head of a Chinese man on the Statue of liberty. I used the source for their satirical comment on the anti-chinese sentiment highlighting the tension at the time.

Keller, George Frederick. "The Chinese Must Go! But, Who Keeps Them?" Wasp, 11 May 1878.
Thomas Nast Cartoons, www.thomasnastcartoons.com/2014/02/14/the-cinese-must-go-but-who-keeps-them-11-may-1878/.

This cartoon questions contradictions with the anti-Chinese arguments. I will use it to illustrate the usage of satire to comment on the high tension environment.

Keller, George Frederick. "What Shall We Do With Our Boys," Wasp, March 3 1882.
<https://chineseexclusionact.com/gallery>

This cartoon showed a racist depiction of a Chinese man taking the jobs of the whites by being too competent. It will be used as an example of how they used media to sway the public.

Keppler, J. F. "The Chinese Invasion." United States, 1880. Library of Congress.
<https://www.loc.gov/item/91793028/>.

This cartoon depicts them monstrosly and invading the country inflicting fear and hostility. I will use it to show xenophobia and discrimination towards Chinese workers.

May, Phil. The Mongolian Octopus. 1895. National Library of Australia, www.nma.gov.au/defining-moments/resources/white-australia-policy.

This cartoon illustrates them as ill, dangerous, and bad for the people. I will use it to show how the media put them in a negative light.

Sala, George Augustus. "Hoodlums pelting Chinese Emigrants on their Arrival at San Francisco." America Revisited, 5th ed., Vizetelly, 1885. Look and Learn, www.lookandlearn.com/history-images/M352383/Hoodlums-pelting-Chinese-Emigrants-on-their-Arrival-at-San-Francisco.

This image shows the hostility directed towards Chinese arriving in San Francisco. This will be used to show the decline in relationship between Americans and the Chinese as the economy went downhill.

U.S. Congress. Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882. National Archives, www.archives.gov/milestone-documents/chinese-exclusion-act.

This document was the piece of legislation that allowed the act to be passed. I will use it to show a physical representation of what enacted the Chinese Exclusion Act.

Wales, J.A. Hobson's choice - you can go or stay. February 24, 1886. Chromolithograph.
Published by Keppler & Schwarzmann. Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, Washington, DC. <https://www.loc.gov/item/2011661384/>.

This image illustrates the extremity of the people's opinions and the harsh situation Chinese immigrants faced. I will use it as a visual aid to represent attitudes towards Chinese immigration through the message of leave or stay and die. It helped me understand the public sentiment and hostility at the time.

"Write Your Congressman." Chinese Press, 10 Sept. 1943. Chinese American: Exclusion/Inclusion, New-York Historical Society, www.chineseamerican.nyhistory.org/exhibition-highlights/write-your-congressman/.

This newspaper article urges Chinese Americans to reach out to congressmen to advocate for their rights. I will use it to show the resistance shown by the Chinese alongside others.

Secondary Sources

Books

Lee, Erika. At America's Gates : Chinese Immigration during the Exclusion Era, 1882-1943. Chapel Hill: The University of North Carolina Press, 2003.

This book shows the effects of the Chinese Exclusion Act on Chinese immigrants and immigration policies. I will use the concept of the U.S. as a “gatekeeping nation” and a quote indicating this. This challenges the image of the United States as a nation of immigrants or as a melting pot.

Lew-Williams, Beth. The Chinese Must Go : Violence, Exclusion, and the Making of the Alien in America. Cambridge, Massachusetts: Harvard University Press, 2018.

This book shows how the immigration policies led to violence against Chinese, shaped future policies, and developed the concept of “alien.” I used examples of white figures who went against the social norms and defended the Chinese like Watson Squire and Granville O. Haller. It helped me understand how immigration exclusion policies caused fear, violence, and long lasting effects on Chinese people.

Railton, Ben. The Chinese Exclusion Act: What It Can Teach Us About America. New York: Palgrave Macmillan, 2013.

This book explores how the Chinese Exclusion Act teaches us lessons on American history, culture, and identity. I will use this source to better understand the act's significance in shaping American laws, diversity, and American stories. It helped me understand this act as the origin of exclusion policies, the struggle of Chinese immigrants, and its impact on future immigration laws.

Periodicals

Baer, James A. 2023. "Chinese Exclusion Act." Salem Press Encyclopedia, January.
<https://research.ebsco.com/linkprocessor/plink?id=6a2ca42f-f7c7-3cbc-b1c9-65bae8bc86bd>.

This article provides a comprehensive overview of the Chinese Exclusion Act, informing me of background context I can use as a base. I will use this source to detail the importance and significance of the act in shaping the U.S. immigration policy. It helped me understand the origin and consequences, long-lasting effects, and the damage caused.

Chen, Joyce J. 2012. "The Impact of Skill-Based Immigration Restrictions: The Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882." The Ohio State University.
<https://studylib.net/doc/8205611/the-impact-of-skill-based-immigration-restrictions>

This paper helped me deepen my understanding of the long-term effect of the Chinese Exclusion Act. I will use it to analyze the background and the formalization of its legacy impacts towards immigration and their descendants.

Zhu, Ping. 2021. "The Chinese Exclusion Act and The Late Qing Chinese Cosmopolitanism." Comparative Literature Studies 58, no. 4: 863-90. <https://muse.jhu.edu/article/820444>.

This article looks at how the Chinese Exclusion Act affected Chinese cosmopolitanism, or culture and identity, in the late Qing dynasty compared to today. I will use the source to understand how media portrayals of the Chinese contrasted with the resistance efforts to counteract them.
